CHERUBS" AGAIN DEFEATED.

This Time to the Tune of Six to One.

Another Fine Exhibition of Ball Playing in the Athletic Club Grounds-Home Runs and Three-Base Hits Were Numerous on the Side of the Home Team.

The Roanokes won the series from the Forest Hills by defeating them in yesterday's game, the score standing 6 to 1. Boyd pitched for the home team and he held the hard hitting Rich. mond boys down to five hits, two of these being made by Tupper. He also gave five men bases on balls, but they did not count for anything because he was at his best when a hit was needed. Lemon, for the visitors, also pitched a good game, but the home team bunched their hits and earned three of their six runs.

The scoring commenced in the first inning. Kain, the first man up, struck out. Foster was given a life at first by Wigmore's error, and in the attempt to steal second, Daniel threw the ball over Wigmore's head and McGinniss allowed Wigmore's head and McGinniss allowed it pass him, Foster scoring on the errors. This was the only run they scored during the entire game. It looked as though they might score again in the fourth. After Napier went out on a fly to Wigmore. Tupper made a two-base hit, Morgan followed it up with a single, but was caught when Meade threw the ball in to Colliflower to head off Tupper at third. Morgan attempting off Tupper at third, Morgan attempting to go to second on the throw-in, but Collidower threw the ball to Wigmore in time to head Morgan off. The best Hodge, the next man, could do was to hit a little one to Boyd, who easily threw him out. threw him out.

In the seventh occurred the prettiest play of the game. Morgan had been given a base on balls, and McCreery struck out, Lemon, the next batter, was also presented with his base. Lemon played a little too far off when Boyd sent the ball to first like a rifle shot sent the ball to first like a rifle shot. It looked as though it was going over O'Hagan's head, but by a great jump in the air he pulled it down with one hand and touched Lemon out before he could get back to the base. This play undoubtedly saved one run, if not more as there was a man on third and deserved all the applause it received.

The home team started scoring in the second, Boyd doing the act through errors of Tupper and Kain. They earned one in the third on O'Hagan's three base hit and Daniel's single. They tallied again in the fifth on Wigmore's single, his steal of second, a passed ball by Foster and Foster's throw to McCreery to catch Wigmore off the base, but Ma. to catch Wigmore off the base, but McCreery was asleep and the ball went out in left field, Wigmore scoring on the throw. O'Hagan scored again in the seventh on his second three-bagger and Morgan's error on the throw in. In the eighth Daniel led off with a since here eighth Daniel led off with a single but was forced out by Meade on second was forced out by Meade on second. Colliflower, the next batter, sent one down in the extreme right field corner for a home run, the first clean one that has been scored when the ball was in-side the grounds, scoring Meade ahead of him.

The features of the game was the first base play of O'Hagan, a great one-hand stop of Morgan at third and Mc-Ginniss' and Hodge's fielding and the batting of O'Hagan, Tupper and Daniel. The Cherubs can get what consola-tion they want out of the following:

Burrows and Springer Make the Speeche of the Day in the House-The Latter Takes the Occasion to Applaud the President's Action and Policy-To-day the Strife Will Come.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25 .- Nothing sensational transpired in the House today. Aside from speeches delived by Burrows and Springer there were none that commanded attention of the members and these two speeches were not listened to with the interest they deserved. To day was a day of calm-the precursor of the storm that will come to-morrow. Silver debate was begun promptly by Pendleton (Dem., Tex) who expressed his intention to vote for free coinage of silver at any ratio that had been suggested.

Bowers (Rep., Cal.) said the vote to be taken next Monday would be a vote as to whether silver should be destroyed as money and the country placed upon a gold basis.

Pigott (Dem., Conn.) spoke briefly in favor of repeal.

favor of repeal.

Dockery (Dem , Mo.) spoke in favor of bime'a lism.

Moon (Rep , Mich ) was also in favor of bimetallism, which he believed would relieve the people from present stringency.

Cobb (Ala.) argued that the Wilson bill would place the country on a gold basis, and he was therefore opposed to

to ti unless it was amended.

Burrows (Rep., Mich.) then claimed the floor and asked unanimous consent he be permitted to speak for forty minutes. Bland objected and Mr. Burrows declined to address the House for five minutes. Bland withdrew his objec-tion and Burrows proceeded with his speech.

He held that if we coined our silver dollar at a ratio of 16 to 1 or 20 to 1 we would have a dollar intrinsically less than the gold dollar. To such a proposition be could not give his assent. Those who favored the repeal of the act of 1890 were the only real bimetallists, and they were pursuing the call. and they were pursuing the only course by which bimetallism could be main by which bimetailism could be main-tained. Free and unlimited coinage of silver at any of the raties named would destroy bimetailism and would reduce this country to a single standard—that of silver—and that depreciated.

Marsh (Rep., Ills.) was outspoken and direct in favor of free and unlimited coinage of silver.

Josep (Dem., N. Mex.) spoke in favor of free coinage.

Compton (Dem., Md.) said he had been in favor of free coinage of silver, but his opinions and convictions had changed and he would now vote for the changed and he would now vote for the unconditional repeal of the purchasing clause of the act of 1890.

Money (Miss.) said he had also changed his front, if not his views, and he intended to vote against the repeal of the purchasing clause.

Durborrow (Dem., Ill.) argued that the United States alone could not adopt free coinage.

Springer followed. He said: I attri bute the actual condition which now the third cause the authority given by the Sherman act. Shall we answer this demand for repeal for which we are called together with the statement that we will not repeal the purchasing clause of the Sherman act until Congress agrees to do something else on some other matter? It is just as parliamen-tary, just as reasonable to insist that the measure for the demonetization of silver shall also be incorporated in that

Some have charged, he said, that Some have charged, he said, that President Cleveland will not or operate with the representatives of the people upon this subject, that he will not sign his name to a measure giving relief to the people and carrying out our pledge to make the largest possible use of gold and silver as a part of the money of the country. If it be that he will prove false to his trust it were better for him that a millstone were tied about his neck and that he be cast into the sea. I do not holleve that any gentleman I do not believe that any gentleman upon this floor contemplates such treason. I do not believe for a moment that Grover Cleveland would in the slightest respect prove false to the pledges he has made

Sykes, of New York, gave four reasons why the Sherman actshould be repealed. Catchings interrupted the proceedings long enough to report the rules of the House without reading and they were House without reading and they were ordered printed.

Hayle (Rep., N. Y.) said he would vote for the repeal of the purchasing clause from a high sense of public duty.

Taylor (Dem., Ind.) spoke for bimetallism. Brawley (Dem., S. C.) advocated the Wilson bill.

Breakingidge (Ark.) though he might Breakinridge (Ark.), though he might not occupy the position he now did, under the circumstances he would vote for the repeal of the Sherman act. McRae (Ark ) attributed the present depression to the evils of the McKinley tariff law.

Dolliver (Rep., Iowa) advocated the Wilson bill. Grout (Rep., Vt.) spoke in favor of repeal, as did also Campbell, (Dem., N. Y.), while Enloe (Dem., Tenn) walked on the opposite side of the road. the road.

McEtrick (Dem., Mass.) supported the Wilson bill. Sipe (Dem., Pa.) and Geissenheimer (Dem., N. J.) spoke in Tenn.) advocated free coinage at any ratio. Simpson (Kans.) asked consent for the consideration of a resolution authorizing the Speaker to appoint a committee of five members to investigate the allegation that certain banks were not naving their checks and in were not paying their checks and inquire into the condition of Secretary Carlisle and Comptroller Eckles in the premises. The Speaker ruled that the resolution was not in order and at 5:35 the House took a recess until 8 o'clock.

IN THE SENATE.

At the close of the routine morning business, which comprised no matter of public interest except the pre-entation of communications of the Treasury Department adverse to any special ury Department adverse to any special legislation in regard to penalties on the whiskey tax. Hill addressed the chair and was recognized. He yielded however, to Vest, who sent to the cerk's desk and had read a communication from the director of the mint, giving statistics as to the purchase, cost and coinage of silver. Hill then resumed his speech from printed slips. His voice was strong and clear and though he indulged in no gesticulations, he used much emphasis and turned his face alternately from one side of the chamber to the other. There was perfect quiet and stillness in the chamber while he spoke and the closest attention was paid to the speech both on tion was paid to the speech both on the floor and in the crowded galleries.

The existing financial disturbances he attributed to three causes: First, it is a natural or inevitable result or incident of many years of real or fictitious prosperity. Besides we are suffering from the evils of over production, the balance of trade has unfortunately been against us, we have sold our railroad and other securities abroad instead of at home, and the interest as well as portions of the principal have been coming due and must be paid in gold.

Unquestionably some of the present

Unquestionably some of the present difficulty may be attributed to the uneasiness of our protected industries which have been accustomed to rely to which have been accustomed to rely to a certain extent to a governmental favorite to support them. I do not disguise the fact that such uneasiness exists and that it contributes its share to the general existing disturbance. The Democratic party, he said, is pledged to tariff reform and it must redeem its pledge, come what may.

Some portion of the present panic may be traced to a concerted effort on the part of numerous monometallists to pro-part of numerous monometallists to produce it, in order to further discredit silver as a party of the standard money of the country.

The Sherman silver purchase law The Sherman silver purchase law has been at least, in part, and possibly the most largely instrumental in producing the existing complications. No one now defends it. Few apologize for it, It has been asserted that the President himself, in his hostility to independent free silver coinage, was disposed at other times to regard with favor, or acquiseen in the provisions. favor or acquiesce in the provisions of the Sherman law, which has been the instrument or means by which such free coinage had been defeated. Whether this be so or not the fact re mains and has not escaped observation that while the Democratic national platform denounced the Sherman law and demanded its repeal—denounced in truce," but as a "cowardly makeshift"—yet Mr. Cleveland. at Madison Square Garden, New York, in answer to the notification of his nomination, ner in his subsequent letter of acceptance nor in his inaugural address in March last, critibute the actual condition which now exists in the country to three controlling and fundamental causes. First. The tariff legislation since the war, the protective tariff laws which are imposing enormous burdens upon the people of the country to protect favorite interests. There has been overproduction by this unatural stimulant; there has been overborrowing, overtrading, overdrafting and thus inevitable disaster.

The second clause in my judgment for the present financial condition is found in demonetization of silver in 1873, and the third cause the authority given by the Sherman law nor made any allusion to it whatever. The Democracy of New York wanted that law repealed because it blocked the way to free bimetallic coinage and not because it would aid the cause of monometallism. That is exactly my position to-day. I am a bimetallist I do not believe in a single gold standard nor a single silver standard, but I do believe in the use of both gold and silver as the sandard money of the country and in their free coinage in our mints at a proper ratio, without in our mints at a proper in our mints at a proper ratio, without any discrimination in favor of one or against the other, and as such bimetal-list, I waver the repeal of the Sherman law, because it is undemocratic, illogi-
